Jennifer liked Kim Baccellia's review of White Lines: "Wowza. Loving the emotional punch of this novel. 17 year old Cat's vulnerability of getting close to anyone is shadowed by her 'night' self where she lets the music, drugs, and high pulsing energy of clubbing try to erase her pain.

Jennifer Banash (Author of Silent Alarm) - Goodreads

But White Lines captures the emotions of youth on the cusp of adulthood perfectly. That's something we can all relate to. This is a pretty dark book. There's lots of drugs and other activities you wouldn't want to think about teens doing, but that's why I liked these kinds of books. They're honest. Jennifer Banash doesn't sugar coat anything. She does tell Cat's story with remarkable beauty.
